Developing and organising state-of-the-art continuous medical education programmes that meet the needs of the medical community at SSMC and throughout the region.

The Centre of Continuous Medical Education (CME) at SSMC was established in August 2021 with a mission to develop, monitor, and promote excellence in continuous medical education (CME). These programmes serve medical and clinical professionals in practice, as well as medical students. The centre is also focused on establishing strong partnerships with international CME, educational, and accreditation institutions.

Improving community health and education outcomes by championing best practices in continuous medical education.

We are committed to maintaining and elevating Standards in CME, mentoring and collaborating with stakeholders. Our centre actively engages in dialogue with CME accreditation authorities, regulatory bodies, and other key stakeholders to foster collaboration and enhance the quality of CME services.

Encouraging creativity, innovation, and best practices, in continuous medical education.

The CME centre at SSMC tailors its programmes to meet the specific needs of each learner, ensuring the delivery of high-quality CME that reflects the latest achievements in the field.

What we provide

- Ensure that all CME programmes meet accreditation requirements.
- Plan and organise continuous medical education programmes, including assessments, feedback collection, and recommendations.
- Contribute to the development, evaluation, and monitoring of accreditation criteria and guidelines related to the CME process and educational programmes, thereby ensuring adherence to CME policy.
- Evaluate and approve CME requests, while monitoring the effectiveness of programme implementation.
- Oversee day-to-day CME operations and processes.
- Grant accreditation for educational and training programmes, in accordance with Department of Health – Abu Dhabi (DoH) accreditation standards.
- Collaborate closely with the DoH's CME section and international organisations to collaborate on advancing CME services.
- Provide guidance and daily support to healthcare professionals regarding CME registration and certifications.
